Everyone at the table has a voice and all members of the Child Study Team must be “child” focused. Everyone’s opinions must be heard. You will not always agree, but you will need to come to some kind of agreement. Greatest word of advice I ever got was when reading “Parenting a Struggling Reader”, by Susan Hall and Louisa Moats:

“Develop a language of persuasion rather than a language of positional battle”

For your meetings with the school district, always carry with you the following resources:

1. New Jersey Dyslexia Handbook
2. Reading level reference chart
3. Words Correct Per Minute Chart
4. Scope and Sequence Chart
5. Dyslexia Assessment Battery test options
6. Information on each of the dyslexia assessment options
7. Information on dyslexia screeners
8. Information on structured literacy intervention programs
9. Assistive Technology options
10. Articles on Dyslexia
11. Articles on reading comprehension and fluency
